

Dear client,

Today we share more information about the Just one drop project and how you can make a contribution to farmers who are still impacted by the drought as well as our communities affected economically by the impact of Covid-19.

It has always been important for GWK to support farmers and communities where we operate, especially where there is distress. That is why we are expanding the Just one drop project to provide further support to farmers in drought areas and the needy in our communities.

The project is a continuation of the work we are doing with Agri Northern Cape and we are expanding it as an extension of Agbiz and Grain SA's larger national humanitarian relief campaign in our country.

We have created effective channels for everyone to contribute to the project with the option of allocating your contribution either to farmers in need or the general public.

How can you help?

- Producers: Donate a portion of your delivery of any products at a GWK facility
- General public: Contribute by donating financially towards our fund

An information sheet is attached to explain this process for producers. The aid fund details where public contributions can be made will be communicated during the week.

Funds to give aid to farmers as well as funds for community aid will be used to make food products available through the GWK Retail network. It will be distributed in the communities with the assistance of Agri Northern Cape for humanitarian relief for farmers as well as charities and churches we have identified to provide help in our communities.

Each drop contributes towards filling the bucket and together we can offer buckets of relief to the communities where we work, live and raise our families.

Regards,
Just one drop* project team

In collaboration with Agri Northern Cape, Grain SA and Agbiz.
